

2025 Introductory Course in Classical Chinese Veterinary Herbal Medicine

Expand your treatment options and view your patients through the new lens of this holistic modality.

Courses run Wednesday through Saturday

June 4th - June 7th

July 9th - July 12th

August 13th - August 16th

Sept. 24th - Sept. 27th

Through this course, you will gain an understanding of herb categories, properties, actions, and functions. We explain how herbal formulas have been constructed over history to achieve the best results for patients. This course is geared to prepare the veterinarian engaged in the rigors of day-to-day practice. With over 17 years of experience teaching veterinarians, over 97% of our graduates are currently using Chinese herbs and seeing the positive results in practice. Come learn this dynamic modality, and provide your clients with the care that, increasingly, more of them are seeking for their animal companions.

“Before taking the ATTH Introductory Chinese Herbal course, I was spending a lot of time feeling lost in regards to choosing herbal formulations for my patients. This course provided the materials and the support I was looking for! A small class size guarantees personal, hands-on instruction, and there’s a community atmosphere of team learning that is present at any ATTH gathering. There’s nothing like sitting around a table with a room of like-minded colleagues and tasting the herbs to determine their function! ATTH is like a family to me now, one I’ve chosen with care, and am happy to be part of.”

Dr. Heather O’Leary
Tessaloo Veterinary Services, Olivebridge, NY

A Time
To Heal

Chinese and Western Herbs
for Veterinary Practices

www.atimetohealherbs.com

In Conjunction With:

college of integrative veterinary therapies

Co-Sponsored by AHVMA

“This course is a hidden gem in the holistic veterinary world. I cannot recommend it enough!”

Dr. Magda Szyrmer
Holistika Veterinary, Los Angeles, CA

Connect with us! www.atimetohealherbs.com admin@atimetohealherbs.com 802-497-2375